

1,016 PASSENGERS TAKEN FROM LINER

Only One Man Injured in Transfer from Strand- ed California.

3 REPORTED KILLED WHEN SHE HIT ROCK

Vessel in Dangerous Position— Crew on Board in Hope She Will Be Floated.

Londonderry, June 29.—Three hundred and forty-eight of the 1,016 passengers of the Anchor Line steamer California, ashore on Tory Island, were landed here to-day. The others were taken to Glasgow.

Latest reports from the scene of the wreck say that the California's bottom has been ripped from the bows to the foremast. The likelihood of saving the vessel is considered remote.

In a thick fog the California ran on the rocks on Sunday night while bound from New York for Glasgow. According to the passengers there was no panic when the liner struck. The sea was calm at the time and the vessel was moving apparently less than seven knots an hour.

The shock was slight but the sudden stopping of the California caused some confusion. The captain and officers quickly restored confidence and as a precautionary measure the boats were swung out but not lowered.

About 1 o'clock a British destroyer, searching for wireless, penetrated the mist. It could be seen that the California had been left almost high and dry by the receding tide. At low tide the vessel was able to get close to the bow of the vessel.

The Donaldson liner Cassandra, which followed the California through-out the voyage, and it was sighted in the fog on Sunday morning, came into view two hours after the destroyer, and soon other destroyers reached the scene. From daylight the work of transferring the passengers proceeded. For several hours the boats piled back and forth, and the passengers were hoisted to the deck of the Cassandra in baskets. Only one accident occurred during this operation. A glass pane fell out of a basket and was lightly injured. When the tide rose the transfer became simplified, as a tender was able to go alongside the California.

Mr. Fulton, a passenger from Cleveland, describing the accident said that when the vessel struck everybody rushed on deck. There was considerable excitement, but no panic. High, about 300 feet away, the captain was on the bridge. He shouted: "All right. There is no danger. Keep your heads!"

Later the captain advised everybody to get to bed, but it was not until a space of fifteen minutes the engines were reversed at intervals in the hope of backing the vessel off, but as this proved impossible, it was discovered that the bows were damaged and the California was making water, the engines were stopped. The arrival of the destroyers and the Cassandra gave great comfort to the passengers, who were taken to the hospital.

California is in a dangerous position on the rocks. Her crew remains aboard, and it is hoped that she can be refloated.

Londonderry, June 30.—"The Daily Chronicle" in a dispatch from Londonderry, which, however, is not confirmed by any other newspaper reports, says that a man, a woman and a child were killed on board the California, either by the shock of the impact when the steamer struck the rocks or by a falling spar.

FINED $5 BECAUSE HE SWORE AT UNCLE SAM

Writer of Pirate Stories Says He's Buddhist, but Court Can't See Argument.

Patchogue, Long Island, June 29.—Guerdon Corwith, of Jennings av., was fined $5 by a justice of the peace to-day because of utterances held by the court to be disrespectful to Uncle Sam. Corwith's statements were made in the postoffice this morning, in the presence of many persons who came for the morning mail.

"You are charged with using profane language in the postoffice," said Justice B. Green, "directed against the government of the United States."

Corwith, who writes pirate stories and signs them "Darius Hoonbone," replied:

"I do not consider what I said profane or blasphemous. I am a Buddhist, in my religion the language I used is perfectly all right."

The court, however, looked upon the incident from a different angle. "Guilty," said Justice of the Peace Green. "Five dollars fine, please."

The trouble started when Corwith went to the postoffice to mail a vase. The fragile article, which he packed in a manner to insure its delivery unbroken. The clerk refused to accept it, telling the author to wrap it securely. Then Corwith took the center of the box and announced in loud tones his opinion of the United States, and told what kind of a postoffice the government maintained at Patchogue.

John T. Daze, postmaster, had the writer arrested.

Ill feeling between Corwith and the local postal authorities has existed for a long time. The former has a very savage dog at his home, in Jennings av., which likes nothing better than to tear away portions of postmen's uniforms.

POLICEMAN SHOTS BOY Lad Who Flew Arrest Victim in Revolver Duel.

After a revolver duel on the street, Patrolman Huber last night chased Harold Robinson, a driver, seventeen years old, to the roof of a five story flat building at 97 Old Broadway, and thence to the yard in the rear of the building, where the policeman shot him. The boy was taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital, where it was said his chances of recovery are slight.

Patrolman Huber tried to arrest Robinson when he found him fighting with two men in West 133d st. Robinson ran and Huber gave chase. Robinson stopped long enough to make his aim steady as he shot at the policeman.

He missed Huber shot back. He missed also. Robinson ran into the building in Old Broadway. Huber followed him, shooting at him again on the stairs and again missing.

He chased Robinson to the roof, where the boy eluded him by way of a fire escape. Leaning over the edge of the roof Huber saw Robinson climbing a fence in the yard. Huber fired a third shot and this time hit the boy in the back, the bullet passing out under his heart.

DESTROY FENCE ON LINKS

Fox Hills Golfers Angry with Man Who Says He Owns Land

Employees of the Fox Hills Golf Club, of Stapleton, Staten Island, tore down late last night the fence which Thomas Hayes, of 226 West 126th st., had built across the links, the property of the club. A force of Hayes's employees watched the proceedings, and reserves from the Stapleton station were rushed over to prevent trouble.

The destruction of six lots of the Vanderbilt estate, leased to the club for the last seven years for a golf course, through a deed which dates back to 1809.

Hayes had hired the holes for the posts on Sunday. George W. Sacke, a New York broker, noticing that Haye had arrested for conducting work on Sunday, and yesterday Magistrate Marsh held him in $500 bail.

Hayes had a wagon driven across one of the holes and left there. This wagon also was removed.

The Fox Hills links is among the finest in the country. The monthly matches have frequently been decided there.

WAITS YEARS FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. John Brisben Walker Charges Desertion in 1901.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Denver, June 29.—John Brisben Walker, formerly editor and proprietor of "The Cosmopolitan Magazine," has been sued for a divorce by Mrs. Emily Strother Walker in the Denver District Court. The complaint is based on desertion alleged to have taken place at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., on October 1, 1901. Mrs. Walker's complaint states that since that time Mr. Walker has not been heard from.

The desertion came, it is stated, after thirty years of married life. They were wed in Martinsburg, W. Va., on April 17, 1871. Mrs. Walker does not ask for alimony. For fourteen years Mr. Walker has not been heard from.

One mile from Morris, Col., which Mr. Walker has developed into a winter resort, lives a woman with three children. It is understood that as soon as the divorce is granted Mr. Walker and this woman will be married.

DENIES GUILT IN POLITICAL VENDETTA

Rofrano Swears He Did Not Force Baldo to Identify 3 Prisoners.

Michael Rofrano, political leader in the 2d Assembly District and a recently appointed Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner, who was implicated last Friday in a case of subornation of perjury in the murder trial of John and Albert Giamari and Nicolangelo, yesterday before Judge Wadhams swore he had nothing to do with the alleged forcing of Baldo to identify the three defendants as the ones who killed Vincenzo Cardello last December.

Rofrano admitted that he knew the three defendants, but that he had had much to do with them after their arrest in the Tammany Club in the 2d Assembly District and setting himself up against Thomas Foley, the Tammany leader. The killing of Cardello, who was a brother of two of the defendants, was an incident in the political fight that ensued. The Giamari brothers refused to join Rofrano, and a few hours before the shooting of Cardello Michele Giamari, a brother of two of the defendants, was shot.

An affray in which a young girl was shot in front of Rofrano's clubhouse, in Madison st., in 1898 was brought out by Mr. Moore. Rofrano was sued by the girl's father, who won a judgment of $2,900. After appealing the case unsuccessfully Rofrano obtained a motion for a new trial on presenting an affidavit by Carnavale stating that Carnavale had been lying. The case was settled out of court.

"Did you shoot the girl?" Rofrano was asked.

"I did not," was the answer.

Lizetta, the sister of Mamie Seravaso, who testified to seeing the three defendants running from the scene of the murder, was put on the stand by the defense and said she had been threatened with violence unless she corroborated her sister's testimony. She implicated Frank Fenimore, who is alleged by Baldo to have been active in getting him to identify the defendants. Fenimore is now a fugitive from justice.

At the beginning of the afternoon session of the court Judge Wadhams instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Geno. A motion for similar instructions in the case of the other two defendants was denied. Geno was released, and it is probable that the case of the Giamari brothers will go to the jury this afternoon.

SIR E. GREY LAUDS PRESIDENT WILSON

British Foreign Secretary Says Tolls Settlement Not Re- sult of Bargain.

London, June 29.—The repeal of the act exempting American coastwise shipping from payment of tolls for passage through the Panama Canal was the subject of a highly interesting portion of a speech by Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons to-day. Sir Edward was replying to a general debate on the appropriations for the Foreign Office, and he paid high compliments to President Wilson and the motives underlying his action.

The Foreign Secretary remarked that while a settlement had been reached it was not entirely free from misrepresentation which might have in the seed of future mischief. He added:

"It is due to the President of the United States and to ourselves that I should so far as possible clear away that misrepresentation. It was stated in some quarters that the settlement was the result of bargaining and of a compromise. Since President Wilson came into office no correspondence has passed, and it ought to be realized in the United States that any line President Wilson has taken was not because it was our line, but his own."

"President Wilson's attitude was not the result of any diplomatic communication since he has come into power and it must have been the result of papers already published to all the world."

"It has not been done to please us or in the interests of good relations, but I believe to a much greater motive—the feeling that a government which is to use its influence among the nations to make relations better must never when the occasion arises flinch or quail from interpreting treaty rights in a strictly fair spirit."

Just a Joke on Huerta.

Washington, June 29.—Among the appropriations decided on in the diplomatic bill to-day were $150,000 for an embassy building in Mexico City, $100,000 for one at Tokyo, and $140,000 for one at Bern.

AMERICA FLIES, CARRYING TEN MEN

Wanamaker's Transatlan- tic Boat Breaks the World's Record.

RISES WITH 4,607 POUNDS FROM LAKE

Lieutenant Porte Expects to Get Away for Newfoundland in Two Days, He Announces.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Hammondsport, N. Y., June 29.—Carrying ten men and lifting a weight of 4,607 pounds, the America, Rodman Wanamaker's transatlantic flying boat, left the surface of Lake Keuka at 7:30 o'clock to-night, thus breaking the world's record for number of passengers carried in a flying boat. Besides Lieutenant John C. Porte and George E. A. Hallett, who are to represent Rodman Wanamaker, and next month, eight newspaper men were aboard.

The flight, although a short one, demonstrated the value of an extension to the planing surface of the machine which was attached this morning. Within a few days the few remaining details in the construction of the machine will be completed and she will be ready to start for Europe.

The flight to-night came as a surprise. In the afternoon Porte had announced that he would not attempt to fly until the morning. He was out at all would confine his experiments to testing the new hydroplaning board. But at 6:30 p. m. a hurry call was sent out by William D. Gash, who represents Rodman Wanamaker, and the newspaper men hastened to the field.

Ten of 'Em Get Aboard.

Mr. Gash and Lieutenant Porte invited all of the correspondents to climb aboard the machine. Porte announced that he did not expect to make a flight but would try planing only, and at a signal from Porte Hallett started the big motor.

At the signal the thirty-five-mile wind, the monster machine headed down the lake, with Glenn H. Curtiss and Lieutenant J. H. Towers speeding abreast of her in a 100-horsepower motor. Porte opened his throttle a bit and the flyer lifted her nose from the water. Down the lake she sped, her big blunt nose rose higher and higher, until an unending procession of cordant hills flashed by on either side.

Porte smiled and opened the throttle a little more. The flyer boat leaped forward and the little auxiliary propeller at the tips of the big red wings left the water entirely. The boat was skimming along on the tiny step under the center of the machine. The craft seemed straining to take the air.

The flyer had been dashed against the celluloid windows on either side of the pilot house disappeared, and by half rising one could discern the thin wake made by the single step, a fine line of white water in the bosom of the darkening waters.

Overhead lowered the massive struts, topped by the broad surface of the upper plane. But no one thought of the machine as it flew. It was one great live monster, bearing down the lake, prepared to sweep before it anything that disputed its right of way.

She Was Flying.

Porte eased back on his throttle levers. The thunderous roar became less deafening, then diminished into a soft purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

There was no particular sense of excitement. It seemed perfectly natural, much more so than when riding the water. The feeling of security increased as the machine sped on toward the purple hills, which she would soon so it purr as the flyer was drawn back to the extreme. The flyer turned. The whole-like nose swung about in a wide circle and headed back for the field and the crowd of watchers.

Porte glanced back to note how his ship was trimmed. Apparently satisfied, he suddenly threw on full power. Once more the motors roared and the America sped over the lake like a flash.

Nobody was prepared for what happened next. Little by little the boat rose in the water until she was planing again. But she did not stop there. Suddenly the vibration under her feet ceased. A wonderful steadiness was there in its place. The America was in her own element. She was flying.

DR. BAXTER GOES; MAY GET A YEAR

Physician at Workhouse Convicted as Trafficker in Drugs with Prisoners.

CAUGHT IN TRAP BY WOMAN SPY

He Was Remanded to the Tombs Until July 3 for Sentence.

Dr. Charles F. Baxter, a resident physician at the workhouse on Blackwell's Island, until his arrest early this month on a charge of selling drugs to prisoners, was convicted yesterday in Special Sessions. He was remanded to the Tombs without bail until July 3, when he will be sentenced on the following charge: He was selling to prisoners a quantity of drugs, but on the following morning a woman spy, Miss Daniels, obtained the evidence against Baxter. She was sent to the workhouse on May 26, ostensibly on a charge of disorderly conduct, to determine the truth of the rumors that prisoners could buy drugs from the physician.

Soon after arriving at the prison Miss Daniels was sent to the hospital for treatment, and she asked Baxter for some morphine. She told him at this time that she was not addicted to the use of drugs, but on the following day, as he was passing her bed, she slipped a note into his hand informing him that she had the morphine habit, and asking for "one-eighth of a grain" of drugs, but that she had given him two marked dollar bills, it was said.

The next day, Baxter, while on his morning rounds, threw a small square of gauze on her bed. The gauze, it is alleged, contained a small quantity of morphine tablets. That night Baxter came to her and asked how she felt.

Miss Daniels replied that the drug had brightened her up and that she felt better. She said that he told her that he intended to be away for several days, but that she would be taken care of. On June 1, when he returned, Miss Daniels said she gave him $5 in marked money for more morphine.

In the effort to disprove the evidence presented by Assistant District Attorney Wilmot, the defense called Jennie Hill, an alleged nurse, who is serving a term for disorderly conduct. She testified that she was being persecuted because she would not testify against Baxter, and that she had given him $5 in marked money for more morphine.

Dr. Baxter was remanded to the Tombs until July 3 for sentence.

Dr. Shaw said yesterday that Miss Daniels would be asked to serve as temporary treasurer for that day, and if the contestants, as undoubtedly she would, she would be asked to forward to Miss Adams, at Hull House, Chicago, whatever sums they can spare and the equivalent of whatever things they can give up between June 1 and July 1.

From there the money will be sent on to the six campaign states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Nevada, Montana, Nebraska, and Missouri.

"We must raise $50,000," Dr. Shaw said. "And if each of our half-million members would give the small amount of 10 cents we could do it."

"Most of us could get much more than 10 cents by giving up something we could get along without. I have decided to give one hundred speeches in stead of none."

Self-denial day is placed the third week in July in honor of Lucy Stone, the founder of the association, whose birthday comes that week. Many suffragists are planning to give up new hats, new gowns, ice cream sodas and other luxuries.

Dr. Shaw said that he was now in Paris, but would be a delegate at the London conference. She will be a substitute for Dr. Shaw.

THREE KILLED IN STORM

Heavy Damage Done to Crops and Property in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., June 29.—Three deaths and heavy crop damages resulted to-day from a storm which crossed central and western Kansas.

Lightning struck the State Normal School at Pittsburg and it burned with a loss of $150,000. Rex R. Tanner, principal of the Weir, Kansas City, High School, and an assistant of the Normal School, was caught by a falling electric wire and killed. Four others were injured.

Two unknown men were killed by lightning in a harvest field at Spearville. An effort is being made to identify one as Fred Lewis, of St. Louis.

NEW YORK TRIPS CHICAGO SWINDLE

Man Caught by Aged "Money Box" Game in West Accused of Trying It Here.

Jacob Dobkin and Philip Miller, alias Weinstein, were arrested yesterday by police charged with operating the old "money box" swindle. Dobkin was a perfectly honest man, according to the police, until he went on a trip to Chicago two years ago.

There Dobkin met into two plausible strangers, who soon got his $5,000, his entire fortune, from him through the money box swindle. Penniless, he returned here. But those Chicagoans had made a deep impression upon him, and he determined to get his money back by imitating them, it is charged. So he has spent the last two years in working the swindle himself, according to the police.

For the information of the uninitiated, he said that the money box swindle is worked in this manner: You get a pretty square, black leather box; fit it out with bottles containing "radium" and powerful acids. Then you go out, find a confiding stranger and convince him that with your box you can make money, twice as cheaply as the government. You get him to invest in your enterprise. He gets the experience and you the money. It is a case of a balance due for printing some of Mr. Sulzer's "short speeches."

The bill against Sulzer amounted originally to $2,775, with 394 additional for certain expenses incurred by the Ogilvie Publishing Company. The former Governor paid $842 on account of the long bill for the short speeches and then stopped paying. It is alleged.

SUE SULZER FOR TALKS Printers Want $3,029 for Work on His 'Short Speeches.'

Assemblyman William Sulzer, one-time Governor of New York, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by the Ogilvie Publishing Company for $3,029, which is a balance due for printing some of Mr. Sulzer's "short speeches."

The bill against Sulzer amounted originally to $2,775, with 394 additional for certain expenses incurred by the Ogilvie Publishing Company. The former Governor paid $842 on account of the long bill for the short speeches and then stopped paying. It is alleged.

When the attention of Judge Humphrey, of Queens, was called to the subject of the espionage of McQuaid, he said:

"They may be following me, too. There are certain persons who are reported to be greatly incensed because I instructed the grand jury to investigate the case thoroughly. They may have some motive in this detective work. However, I regard it as unimportant. The real thing is that Queens County justice has been vindicated."

DR. BAXTER GOES; MAY GET A YEAR

Physician at Workhouse Convicted as Trafficker in Drugs with Prisoners.

CAUGHT IN TRAP BY WOMAN SPY

He Was Remanded to the Tombs Until July 3 for Sentence.

Dr. Charles F. Baxter, a resident physician at the workhouse on Blackwell's Island, until his arrest early this month on a charge of selling drugs to prisoners, was convicted yesterday in Special Sessions. He was remanded to the Tombs without bail until July 3, when he will be sentenced on the following charge: He was selling to prisoners a quantity of drugs, but on the following morning a woman spy, Miss Daniels, obtained the evidence against Baxter. She was sent to the workhouse on May 26, ostensibly on a charge of disorderly conduct, to determine the truth of the rumors that prisoners could buy drugs from the physician.

Soon after arriving at the prison Miss Daniels was sent to the hospital for treatment, and she asked Baxter for some morphine. She told him at this time that she was not addicted to the use of drugs, but on the following day, as he was passing her bed, she slipped a note into his hand informing him that she had the morphine habit, and asking for "one-eighth of a grain" of drugs, but that she had given him two marked dollar bills, it was said.

The next day, Baxter, while on his morning rounds, threw a small square of gauze on her bed. The gauze, it is alleged, contained a small quantity of morphine tablets. That night Baxter came to her and asked how she felt.

Miss Daniels replied that the drug had brightened her up and that she felt better. She said that he told her that he intended to be away for several days, but that she would be taken care of. On June 1, when he returned, Miss Daniels said she gave him $5 in marked money for more morphine.

In the effort to disprove the evidence presented by Assistant District Attorney Wilmot, the defense called Jennie Hill, an alleged nurse, who is serving a term for disorderly conduct. She testified that she was being persecuted because she would not testify against Baxter, and that she had given him $5 in marked money for more morphine.

Dr. Baxter was remanded to the Tombs until July 3 for sentence.

Dr. Shaw said yesterday that Miss Daniels would be asked to serve as temporary treasurer for that day, and if the contestants, as undoubtedly she would, she would be asked to forward to Miss Adams, at Hull House, Chicago, whatever sums they can spare and the equivalent of whatever things they can give up between June 1 and July 1.

From there the money will be sent on to the six campaign states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Nevada, Montana, Nebraska, and Missouri.

"We must raise $50,000," Dr. Shaw said. "And if each of our half-million members would give the small amount of 10 cents we could do it."

"Most of us could get much more than 10 cents by giving up something we could get along without. I have decided to give one hundred speeches in stead of none."

Self-denial day is placed the third week in July in honor of Lucy Stone, the founder of the association, whose birthday comes that week. Many suffragists are planning to give up new hats, new gowns, ice cream sodas and other luxuries.

Dr. Shaw said that he was now in Paris, but would be a delegate at the London conference. She will be a substitute for Dr. Shaw.

WHITMAN BARNES FOE, SAYS DUELL

District Attorney's Aid De- clares Roosevelt Will Give Help.

In a statement issued last night Charles H. Duell, Jr., declared that District Attorney Whitman is unalterably opposed to William Barnes and to Charles F. Murphy and that he did not act as Mr. Whitman's intermediary in his visits to Colonel Roosevelt. He explained that he acted as a friend to both "to unite them in a movement to clean up the state."

This statement of Mr. Duell, coupled with that made by Mr. Whitman earlier in the day, made it clear that the District Attorney had not sent Mr. Duell to Sagamore Hill to obtain the Progressive endorsement for Mr. Whitman's declaration for Governor.